

ORVIETO

Quite easy to reach in a couple of hours from Rome to get an idea of a small town in Italy, you can choose Orvieto, in Umbria Region; it is located on the top of a volcanic rock, made of golden tufa stones, this wonderful city, well-known for its cathedral, offers you a joyful atmosphere with its shops and wine cellars.

Take an easy walk through its beautiful streets, stop for a glass of wine or a delicious cappuccino and chocolate or maybe for a mouthwatering porchetta sandwich at the local market.

Visit the famous St. Patrick Well, enjoy the views on the breathtaking countryside and do not forget the chance of going underground to see how people transformed their basements in caves and tunnels to work there and age wine and cheese.

Here you can enjoy a good traditional lunch or the classical Italian Breakfast with a gorgeous cappuccino, and you can visit the St. Patrick well from inside. In fact, this well was built based on a plan of Antonio da Sangallo il Giovane. The St. Patrick well, completed in 1537, is 62 meters deep and, at the inside, two double-spiraled stairwells were made, planned for easier transportation of water, now you can step on it visiting the well.
